

Security in God's House

“And, today in the Lord,” God says, “there is peace and there is deliverance in His house, and there is victory in His place. And now,” says God, “lean on Me with all of your personality in these times, where others look to natural things, where others look to the things of this world, where others lean on the things of this kingdom. The pillar they rest upon,” says God, “is not a sure one, it’s not a stable one,” saith God, “but it is one that will be shaken and it is one that will fall. For all things built of man are temporary. All things built of this world and this world’s kingdom will let you down and will fracture and will fail in this day.”

“But,” the Lord says this in this house, “if you will seek out the pillar of truth in the house of God, if you will lean yourself upon and latch yourself to that pillar,” says God, “when the times of shaking come, when the times of distress visit, you shall not be moved. All around you the things shake, all around you things shall shudder and quake, but you shall not be moved,” saith God. “For you will have hooked yourself, you will have latched yourself, you will have secured yourself to the pillar in the house of God. And you’ll not fail in that day,” saith God. “And you’ll not falter in that hour,” saith the Lord. “For there is a darkness of even a greater degree moving out upon the land. There is a darkness of even a greater factor,” saith God, “even now moving out across this nation. You must be ready for that which is to come this year. You must be ready for that which is to be unveiled upon this land, and if you are not ready,” saith God, “you may be washed away. But in this house,” saith God, “there is strength. In this house,” saith God, “there is surety and a strong foundation. So find your way to the pillar,” says God. “Find your way to the strength stabilization that I’ve placed in this house, and you’ll not be shaken, and you’ll not be moved,” saith the Lord of Hosts. Hallelujah forever to the Lord Jesus.
